

Made-to-Measure products

Made-to-Measure refers to a level of customization that falls between ready-to-wear (off-the-rack) clothing and fully bespoke (custom-made) clothing. In Maßkonfektion, garments are produced based on standardized patterns that can be adjusted to fit individual measurements and preferences. These adjustments might include alterations to sleeve length, trouser length, waist size, and other key measurements.

The process typically involves choosing a base size closest to the individual's measurements and making minor modifications to ensure a better fit. While the options for customization are more limited compared to fully bespoke clothing, made-to-measure provide a higher level of fit and personalization compared to ready-to-wear clothing.

Related articles

- Bespoke Tailoring & Made-To-Measure products
- Body data capturing and management
- ZUGSEIL TILA